Annexation Update

In our past newsletters, we have written about our commitment to legally challenge the annexation of 291 acres of prime farmland in the Mann Valley by the City of River Falls. A portion of that property was rezoned by the city and the Land of Lakes owned Winfield Solutions facility now sits on the property.

If you have been reading the local papers you will know that the case went to trial in November and that the judge in the case, Justice Waterman, has ruled against the town.

The Troy Board remains concerned that if this circuit court decision is allowed to stand, that it harms not only Troy residents, but also sets a negative precedent that could have detrimental effects on other towns in the surrounding area and possibly state-wide.

At the January Town Board meeting, the board voted after considerable discussion to file an appeal on a portion of the judge's decision in the case. The case now moves on to the Court of Appeals.
